COVID-19 FAQ's for EMS/Fire/Law Enforcement

Meetings and Training

Last Updated 3/25/2020 2:30 PM

- 1) What should I do for meetings and trainings?
  - a. Cancel or eliminate community outreach programs such as safety courses, fire prevention programs, etc that engage schools, group homes, high occupancy dwellings, churches, etc.
  - b. Cancel or eliminate banquets, conferences, and meetings with more than 25, frankly even 10 attendees.
  - c. Perform only essential training, and when doing so, limit training to small groups whenever possible and follow social distancing guidelines.
- 2) What about training at the PSTF?
  - a. All training at the PSTF is cancelled until further notice. The PSTF will be closed and secured except for personnel directly involved in the emergency response effort to COVID-19. The start of future training is currently unknown.
- 3) Should I change my personnel staffing?
  - a. Given that responders should be wearing PPE as directed, and we are now in a period of community spread, one of our greatest risks is just that: community spread. Particularly for emergency services, keeping groups/stations/personnel together helps cohort that group. This way in case one of them gets sick from either an occupational or community exposure and subsequently exposes others, it limits the exposure to just that group/station. For that reason, whenever possible, minimize personnel floating/swapping from group to group or station to station. We understand the effects on staffing, however at the same time a single individual who becomes ill having worked with different stations or groups during a time of infectivity could very well result in far more than just one individual or group going into quarantine.
- 4) What do I do about personnel whose EMS Certification is about to expire?
  - a. While we await documentation from the state, individuals should make every effort to complete their recertification using on-line means, even if the agency is not participating in fully on-line CME content.
  - b. Should the individual not be able to recertify despite documentation of all efforts to do so, Dr. Cushman supports their continued practice at their level of certification during this declared Public Health Emergency until such time as the Bureau provides additional guidance.
